Food Security Situation*

- Results from assessments in Darfur indicate a deteriorated food security situation in West and South Darfur. Conflict remains one of the key impediments to humanitarian access.

- Due to poor crop production in 2009 and reduced off-farm production in 2010 to date, the hunger season in Southern Sudan has begun earlier than normal (in March/April rather than May/June), and food security in conflict-affected areas is not expected to improve until the September harvest.

- Since January 2009, attacks by the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) in Western and Central Equatoria states and neighboring countries have affected more than 100,000 IDPs and refugees in Southern Sudan. WFP has provided over 2,500 MT of food assistance to these affected populations.
